Renewable energy company GREENING heads to BME Growth

The first company to be listed on this SME exchange in 2023 is GREENING, a photovoltaic engineering and construction company.

GREENING, which is carrying out two share subscription offers before listing on BME Growth, aims to bring both public and private companies closer to the production of renewable energy from photovoltaic solar power.

The importance of funding in uncertainty times

Listing on an exchange such as BME Growth provides access to permanent financing, which is the main advantage for public companies in any sector, as they are more resilient in uncertain economic environments due to the diversified sources of financing provided by the capital markets.

Making IPOs attractive should be a State matter

Having a strong stock market, sized in line with the country's economy and with the right dynamism for the projection of its local business, is a key element that guarantees more balanced and sustainable growth; especially in a context of rising interest rates, in which diversifying the funding sources should be an essential requirement for companies.

This also applies to small and medium enterprises, which are increasingly able to access capital markets thanks to the important role played by both the BME Growth and the Pre-Market Environment in recent years.

Executives of companies listed on BME Growth share their experience with the Pre-market Environment

The Pre-Market Environment, a BME's open training, coaching, and networking programme for those companies seeking financing through the capital markets, has accumulated several success stories helping and training companies to make the leap into the capital markets.

The CEOs of Enerside and Energy Solar Tech, two of the companies that have made this leap, share their experience of how they jump from the Pre-Market Environment into the BME Growth exchange.
